

Graduate Employment Survey Methodology and Data Collection

The graduate employment survey methodology involves systematic data collection techniques to accurately capture the employment status of recent graduates. Surveys are conducted through various channels such as online questionnaires, telephone interviews, and mailed forms to ensure comprehensive and reliable data. This approach helps institutions assess graduate outcomes and inform career support services.